

LYLE XOX – STATEMENT

I.THEY.MINE.YOURS...

It begins with the self. Personal, and intimate. A human plinth.

Then placed upon this mortal pedestal are the objects that were deemed no longer valuable. They have been discarded, having reached their expiry date, and now seek refuge in the artists' hands. These newly found objects enter a world of inspiration and are seen in a new light. Their stories now merge with mine.

The journey of transformation and exploration of value and sentimentality become a central focus. The viewer is granted access to experience stories embedded in the DNA of these objects. Shared through a dreamlike lens, these stories are now passed from this world of mine to yours.

This creative voyage of storytelling and consciously choosing how we view and interact with the ephemeral world continues from this moment on.

I. They. Mine. Yours...